EXPLOSION KILLS 1, TRAPS 30 COAL MINERS

DUST OR GAS BLAST AT MINE, WEST FRANKFORT

100 MEN FIRST CAUGHT IN THE WORKINGS, SOME 70 ESCAPE

EXPLOSION OCCURRED AT APPROXIMATELY THE 350-FOOT LEVEL

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—Members of the mine rescue teams which penetrated mine No. 18 of the Peabody Coal Co. near here today, where an explosion occurred at 7:40 A. M., unofficially reported discovery of 14 bodies this afternoon. There were 23 men missing at the time, including the number reported dead. There was no official confirmation of the report, however.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—(UP)—An explosion in mine No. 18 of the Peabody Coal Co., north of here caused one death and held between 20 and 30 miners captive, a check-up at 1 P. M. today disclosed. The dead miner, Carl Jones, a face boss of West Frankfort, was one of 700 men who had been at work less than 30 minutes this morning when a dust or gas explosion cut off approximately 136 men, all but about thirty of which had made their way to safety early this afternoon.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—Approximately 100 miners were first trapped by an explosion of undetermined extent in the Peabody Coal Co. mine No. 18, two miles northeast of here, at 7 A. M. today.

Four hours after the explosion, officials in charge of mine rescue squads reported inability to penetrate the workings to the point of the explosion and said they were without information on the exact number of men in the mine.

The explosion occurred at approximately the 350-foot level.

The force of the explosion, according to two miners who managed to reach the surface, considerably wrecked the brattice work. Men are working in relays attempting to penetrate to the trapped men.

The Peabody mine is located here in the center of a great coal producing district which recently resumed work with temporary resumption of the controversial Jacksonville wage scale.

West Frankfort, Ill., Jan. 9.—An explosion of undetermined extent occurred today at the Peabody Coal Co.'s mine, north of this city.

Officials of the company declined to discuss the nature of the explosion, and explained "We think it best to give out nothing until we know what we are talking about."

Mine rescue crews were called from nearby towns, however.

Normally the mine is understood to employ about 400 men, although first, unconfirmed reports declared 150 men had been trapped by the explosion.

Two miners employed in the mine escaped and reported that a "dust explosion" had occurred. They said they believed more than 100 men went to work in the mine this morning.

TWO GIRLS IN BOYS' CLOTHING AND TWO BOYS ARE ARRESTED

The boys were Forrest Stoneking, 15, and Orville Wentworth, 19.

DEVIL HAS A SAD TIME IN ST. LOUIS

BILLY SUNDAY OPENS FIRST OF SEVEN WEEKS' SERIES REVIVAL MEETINGS

PERSONALLY HE DECLARED HIS OPENING A REAL "KNOCK-OUT"

St. Louis, Mo., Jan. 9.—&—The devil spent an uncomfortable week-end in St. Louis.

Billy Sunday opened the first of a seven weeks' series of revival meetings, and personally declared it "a knock-out."

Fifteen thousand persons jammed their way into the new Coliseum here to witness the evangelist in action and to hear him "lambast Satan."

In addition to shredding the whole fabric of sin, Sunday threw his picturesque support to the memory of George Washington and Warren G. Harding.

"Oh," he shouted, "I'm sick of all this filthy muckraking."

"Rupert Hughes has discovered that Washington played cards a little and maybe said a few naughty words; might have had some brew in his cellar."

"But did he have anything to say about Washington taking command of the army under the Cambridge elm, or of the trials at Valley Forge where Washington prayed with his chin in the snow?"

"And this damnable rot about Harding?"

"Why did they wait until both Harding and his wife were dead before they uttered their gross slander?"

Sunday rapped companionate marriage as "barn-yard marriage"; defended prohibition as "God's greatest gift to America"; and deplored materialism as "our legacy from the war and the greatest thing the ministers have to combat."

OPEN 2 ADDITIONAL HEARTH FURNACES AT DULUTH PLANT

Duluth, Minn., Jan. 9.—(UP)—The opening of two additional open hearth furnaces at the Minnesota Steel company plant in Morgan park will give employment to 200 men this week, it was learned here today. Five of the company's ten furnaces are now firing and by Saturday there will be seven in operation.

TEN BODIES FROM SUBMARINE S-4 ARE IDENTIFIED

TOTAL OF 17 BODIES HAVE NOW BEEN RECOVERED FROM VESSEL

LAST 10 FOUND WERE REMOVED TO CHELSEA NAVAL HOSPITAL

Boston, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Ten bodies removed Saturday from the sunken submarine S-4 have been identified at the Chelsea naval hospital, as follows:

John J. Fennell, Lowell, Mass., machinists' mate.

Clarence F. Bethke, Wisconsin Rapids, Wis., engineer.

Alfred E. Seaton, Norfolk, Va., quartermaster.

Charles B. Calcott, Melrose Park, Ill., machinists' mate.

Peder Haaland, Ada, Minn., machinists' mate.

After F. Hodges, New London, Conn., machinists' mate.

Mariamo Tadar, Philippine Islands, mess attendant.

J. H. Long, Gainesville, Texas, fireman.

Charles F. Burrell, Tamaqua, Pa., seaman.

Charles A. Ford, Washington, civilian employe, naval board of inspection and survey.

A total of 17 bodies have now been recovered.

Charlestown Navy Yard, Boston, Jan. 9.—Although he was named defendant Saturday in the S-4 inquiry, Lieut. Commander John S. Baylis of the coast guard destroyer Paulding resumed the witness stand today as "an interested party."

Commander Leroy Reinberg, counsel for the coast guard, told the court of inquiry that he had conferred with Rear Admiral F. C. Billard, head of the coast guard, and had been instructed to allow Baylis to continue testifying as though there had been no change in his status.

It was Baylis' ship which rammed and sank the submarine S-4 off Provincetown Dec. 17 with a loss of 40 lives.

Interest in the hearing was increased today due to statements made last night by Reinberg, that on several occasions during the past year, vessels operating in Cape Cod waters had been endangered by submarines.

Reinberg told the United Press today he intended to introduce the matter in testimony before the court of inquiry. He probably would not be able to do so today, he said, because of the difficulty of getting witnesses from Provincetown.

Testifying today Baylis described the collision. He said he was emerging from the chart house of the Paulding when the accident occurred.

"Coming up under our port bow appeared something resembling spars or markers for fish nets," he said. "I saw I had to back at full speed."

"The quartermaster said it was a submarine emerging. It was evident then that this was true. The ship had begun to swing to the right and the engines were getting a grip on the water."

"As we were about to come into collision, I could see the conning tower breaking the water."

"When we struck the submarine, we hit with a terrible crash and the vessel seemed to rise out of the water."

"We could see no one in the water. Someone cried that the submarine had gone down."

"Emergency signals were raised, a lifeboat put out, and a buoy dropped near the scene of impact. An officer was ordered to take a bearing on Wood End Light."

"An officer sent below to scan the damage to the Paulding said water was filling the locker room. It was at first feared the Paulding would sink."

"It was important, in order to save the loss of more men, to save my own boat. I headed toward the beach, but as we did not seem to be sinking rapidly, we headed around Long Point and into the inner harbor. Here I anchored near the mud flats and the crew managed to get the water under control with the pumps."

"The five persons were en route to Catfish Bar where they were to meet nine others for a fishing party."

When George Darwin was found on the edge of the ice where the automobile dropped he was crying and asked those who rushed to the scene from Catfish Bar, "Isn't Daddy coming up?" But "Daddy" sank after heroically assisting his son.

The automobile was lifted from the bottom of the river by grappling hooks late Sunday but the two victims were not in the car. The bodies were expected to be found today.

Workers at noon cut holes in the ice at a spot below where the automobile went through and lowered nets into the river in an effort to catch the bodies if they are carried down stream.

Hundreds of persons lined the banks of the river watching the operations of workmen in their efforts to retrieve the bodies.

'HAS A CITIZEN NO PRIVILEGES?' ASKS BOEDEKER

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—(UP)—After shooting himself and plunging into the Mississippi river twice Sunday, Frederick W. Boedecker, 66, protested vigorously when he was "dry-docked" by a police officer.

After domestic difficulties troubled his mind, Boedecker went to the high bridge, shot himself and then jumped into the river below. He swam ashore and remained there until E. C. Rassmussen, motorcycle officer, who was called by passersby, arrived.

Boedecker then jumped back into the river and was pulled ashore by Rassmussen.

"Has a citizen no privileges?" he asked, according to police.

At Ancker hospital, where he was taken, physicians said he will recover.

2 DROWN WHEN AUTO CRASHES THROUGH ICE

AUTHORITIES SEARCH FOR THE BODIES IN ST. CROIX RIVER AT AFTON

3 OTHERS IN THE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT ESCAPED

Afton, Minn., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Authorities today searched for bodies of two persons who drowned when an automobile crashed through thin ice on the St. Croix river near here Sunday. Three others who were in the automobile escaped.

The dead were: Hiram I. Darwin, 48, and Charles Pollard, 19.

Darwin's nine-year-old son George was saved from drowning when he was pushed out of the water hole by his father. The others who escaped are Al V. Palmersten, detective, and his son, Louis, 18.

The five persons were en route to Catfish Bar where they were to meet nine others for a fishing party.

When George Darwin was found on the edge of the ice where the automobile dropped he was crying and asked those who rushed to the scene from Catfish Bar, "Isn't Daddy coming up?" But "Daddy" sank after heroically assisting his son.

BARRICADES STOPPED DAMAGE ON SUNDAY

THOUSANDS REFUSE TO RETURN TO HOMES UNTIL HIGH TIDE RECEDED

WORST OF THE SUNDAY FLOOD WAS AT HAMMERSMITH AREA

London, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Embankments along the Thames were strengthened today in an attempt to prevent a repetition of the flood that swept the city Saturday and Sunday.

Barricades prevented serious damage Sunday, although the river was reported higher than Saturday when tremendous damage was done and at least 15 persons were killed.

No overflow had been reported to day but along the entire course of the river residents were wary. Thousands refused to return to their homes until high tide had receded this morning.

The worst of the Sunday damage was at Hammersmith. Basements were flooded. Furniture floated on a level with the windows and many householders were forced to top floors of their houses.

Houses were flooded in Kew and the water surrounded the ministry of pensions. The temporary defense at the Hurlingham club's polo grounds at Putney bridge were washed aside and officials were forced to flee to safety.

Thousands gathered in all of the affected districts to watch the turbulent waters of the great river. So great was the excitement that police placed cordons about all the approaches to embankments to prevent any disasters.

Police patrolled the entire affected area. There were no reports of pillaging.

The sand bag embankments, thrown up hastily after the Saturday flood, apparently had prevented any considerable damage Sunday.

The Sunday floods were scattered and seemed to do little damage except to private homes. No lives were reported lost.

Along the entire course, however, thousands of residents kept vigilant watch, prepared to flee at the slightest indication of a rise.

LAST WEEK OF LIFE FOR GRAY, RUTH SNYDER

TWO CONVICTED LOVERS UNDER DOUBLE GUARD TODAY

TO PREVENT SUICIDE ATTEMPTS, OR SMUGGLING ANYTHING TO THEM

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(UP)—What may be the last week of life for both Ruth Snyder and Henry Judg Gray found the two convicted lovers under double guard today.

The guard was strengthened yesterday for three reasons—to prevent suicide attempts; to prevent anyone from smuggling anything to the two convicted slayers of Albert Snyder and to prevent any uncensored notes from leaving the prison.

The two were scheduled to die in the electric chair at midnight Thursday.

Mrs. Snyder wept and was in complete despair. Gray seemed more philosophic. He read a great deal, but talked little with his guards.

Only one slender hope remained for the convicted couple. That was intervention by Governor Smith. He had been asked to show clemency and may announce a decision after receiving an alienists report this week. Three state alienists will examine the couple either today or tomorrow.

The double guard decision brought about additional hardship to Mrs. Snyder. Her mother will be allowed to visit her now only at the regular visiting hours.

Prison officials said they had learned that the mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown, and Mrs. Snyder had arranged a secret method of communication. They said Mrs. Snyder had managed to visit the wash-room in the cell block shortly before her mother's arrival. After Mrs. Brown had visited her daughter she was permitted to use the washroom and officials said in this manner she obtained messages.

Recently prison officials announced a story appearing in a New York tabloid newspaper under Mrs. Snyder's signature had been taken from the prison without authority.

Arrangements for the execution went forward in routine manner. The three matrons who have watched over Mrs. Snyder since she was brought to Sing Sing will be with her Thursday night.

It has not been decided which of the slayers will be taken to the electric chair first. It was considered probable that Mrs. Snyder would be the first, as officials feared she might collapse if forced to await until her one time lover had been executed.

3 OTHERS IN THE AUTOMOBILE ACCIDENT ESCAPED

Afton, Minn., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Authorities today searched for bodies of two persons who drowned when an automobile crashed through thin ice on the St. Croix river near here Sunday. Three others who were in the automobile escaped.

The dead were: Hiram I. Darwin, 48, and Charles Pollard, 19.

Darwin's nine-year-old son George was saved from drowning when he was pushed out of the water hole by his father. The others who escaped are Al V. Palmersten, detective, and his son, Louis, 18.

The five persons were en route to Catfish Bar where they were to meet nine others for a fishing party.

When George Darwin was found on the edge of the ice where the automobile dropped he was crying and asked those who rushed to the scene from Catfish Bar, "Isn't Daddy coming up?" But "Daddy" sank after heroically assisting his son.

The automobile was lifted from the bottom of the river by grappling hooks late Sunday but the two victims were not in the car. The bodies were expected to be found today.

Workers at noon cut holes in the ice at a spot below where the automobile went through and lowered nets into the river in an effort to catch the bodies if they are carried down stream.

Hundreds of persons lined the banks of the river watching the operations of workmen in their efforts to retrieve the bodies.

Griffith, Screen Comedian, and Bertha Mann Married

Hollywood, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Raymond Griffith, screen comedian, and Bertha Mann, actress, were married here last night. They expected to leave for London in a few days.

damage to the Paulding said water was filling the locker room. It was at first feared the Paulding would sink.

"It was important, in order to save the loss of more men, to save my own boat. I headed toward the beach, but as we did not seem to be sinking rapidly, we headed around Long Point and into the inner harbor. Here I anchored near the mud flats and the crew managed to get the water under control with the pumps."

BARRICADES STOPPED DAMAGE ON SUNDAY

THOUSANDS REFUSE TO RETURN TO HOMES UNTIL HIGH TIDE RECEDED

WORST OF THE SUNDAY FLOOD
WAS AT HAMMERSMITH
AREA

London, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Embankments along the Thames were strengthened today in an attempt to prevent a repetition of the flood that swept the city Saturday and Sunday.

Barricades prevented serious damage Sunday, although the river was reported higher than Saturday when tremendous damage was done and at least 15 persons were killed.

No overflow had been reported today but along the entire course of the river residents were wary. Thousands refused to return to their homes until high tide had receded this morning.

The worst of the Sunday damage was at Hammersmith. Basements were flooded. Furniture floated on a level with the windows and many householders were forced to top floors of their houses.

Houses were flooded in Kew and the water surrounded the ministry of pensions. The temporary defense at the Hurlingham club's polo grounds at Putney bridge were washed aside and officials were forced to flee to safety.

Thousands gathered in all of the affected districts to watch the turbulent waters of the great river. So great was the excitement that police placed cordons about all the approaches to embankments to prevent any disasters.

Police patrolled the entire affected area. There were no reports of pillaging.

The sand bag embankments, thrown up hastily after the Saturday flood, apparently had prevented any considerable damage Sunday.

The Sunday floods were scattered and seemed to do little damage except to private homes. No lives were reported lost.

Along the entire course, however, thousands of residents kept vigilant watch, prepared to flee at the slightest indication of a rise.

MORE NICE WEATHER COMING TOMORROW

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—(UP)—More nice weather—that kind that causes forgetfulness of what has been—is in store for Minnesota and the northwest tonight and Tuesday, the weatherman promised today.

Temperatures throughout the state will go to about the freezing point to night, and moderate temperatures with clear skies are predicted for Tuesday.

The anticipated cold wave which was supposed to bring out the fur coats and ear-flaps over the week end evidently was delayed along the line.

A robin—either the last of the fall or the first of year—was sighted hopping over a snowbank on a Minneapolis lawn Saturday.

TWO MURDERERS PAY FOR CRIMES IN ELECTRIC CHAIR

Rockview Penitentiary, Bellefontaine, Pa., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Two murderers paid for their crimes with their lives in the electric chair here today.

Denying his guilt to the last, Raymond Winter was electrocuted for the murder of two children, Alexander Sabo, 8, and Helen Sabo, 6, at Castle Shannon, Pa., May 28, 1925.

William Meyers was executed for the slaying of a Philadelphia policeman.

LAST WEEK OF LIFE FOR GRAY, RUTH SNYDER

TWO CONVICTED LOVERS UNDER DOUBLE GUARD
TODAY

TO PREVENT SUICIDE ATTEMPTS,
OR SMUGGLING ANYTHING TO THEM

Ossining, N. Y., Jan. 9.—(UP)—What may be the last week of life for both Ruth Snyder and Henry Judg Gray found the two convicted lovers under double guard today.

The guard was strengthened yesterday for three reasons—to prevent suicide attempts; to prevent anyone from smuggling anything to the two convicted slayers of Albert Snyder and to prevent any uncensored notes from leaving the prison.

The two were scheduled to die in the electric chair at midnight Thursday.

Mrs. Snyder wept and was in complete despair. Gray seemed more philosophic. He read a great deal, but talked little with his guards.

Only one slender hope remained for the convicted couple. That was intervention by Governor Smith. He had been asked to show clemency and may announce a decision after receiving an alienists report this week. Three state alienists will examine the couple either today or tomorrow.

The double guard decision brought about additional hardship to Mrs. Snyder. Her mother will be allowed to visit her now only at the regular visiting hours.

Prison officials said they had learned that the mother, Mrs. Josephine Brown, and Mrs. Snyder had arranged a secret method of communication. They said Mrs. Snyder had managed to visit the wash-room in the cell block shortly before her mother's arrival. After Mrs. Brown had visited her daughter she was permitted to use the washroom and officials said in this manner she obtained messages.

Recently prison officials announced a story appearing in a New York tabloid newspaper under Mrs. Snyder's signature had been taken from the prison without authority.

Arrangements for the execution went forward in routine manner. The three matrons who have watched over Mrs. Snyder since she was brought to Sing Sing will be with her Thursday night.

It has not been decided which of the slayers will be taken to the electric chair first. It was considered probable that Mrs. Snyder would be the first, as officials feared she might collapse if forced to await until her one time lover had been executed.

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—(UP)—The long delayed fight over the MacMaster resolution recommending reduction in tariff duties opened in the senate today.

Cass Lake, Minn., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Three Indians, residents of the reservation here, were rescued from a watery grave Sunday when ice on a lake collapsed, while they were seated in a shack, spearing pickerel. 30 DAYS IN THE WORKHOUSE FOR A BLACK EYE

St. Paul, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Prize of 30 days in the workhouse was awarded today for the finest black eye seen in police court here in a long time.

It was completely closed and the color scheme included many hues other than black. Joe Chico was awarded the 30 days on a disorderly conduct charge for giving the "shiner" to his father-in-law during the fight in the Mexican quarters of the city Sunday.

Miss Elizabeth Kerr to Appear in Program Under Musical Club Auspices

AT NEW ELKS HALL

Receives Popular Acclaim Upon American Concert and Opera Stage

Miss Elizabeth Kerr, American lyric soprano, will appear here under the auspices of the Brainerd Musical club in a specially arranged program that will afford her an opportunity to bring out the full qualities of her talented voice. The program will be presented at the new Elks hall Sunday afternoon, January 22, at 3:30 p. m.

Miss Kerr is under the national concert direction of Harry and Arthur Culbertson, Aeolian hall, New York and 4832 Dorchester avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The noted soprano began singing in her school days. She studied with Francesco Daddi, of grand opera fame. Being thoroughly American in all her ideas, this artist has gained all her schooling and her actual experience in Chicago, the city where she was born in 1895, and where she made her debut four seasons ago as soprano with the Chicago Civic Opera, one of the great opera companies of the world.

That European study does much to broaden an artist is Miss Kerr's sincere belief, but that it is necessary to leave America for a number of years in order to achieve a place later in the American music world, she does not believe, and she has proven the worth of her all-American ideas at a remarkably early age.

In this country she has been cast with such artists as Mary Garden, Claudia Muzio, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason, Feodor Chaliapin and Georges Baklanoff, and her unusual combination of voice, art, and personality makes it safe to assume that no other artist of her age has been more generally acclaimed upon the American concert and opera stage.

Jaroslav Gons, violinist has been secured as the artist for the January 14 meeting of the musical club at the new Elks hall. The recital will start at 2 p. m. Mr. Gons is under the direction of Harry and Arthur Culbertson.

Soft water keeps clothes white

Hard water always leaves clothes gray, no matter how much you wash and rinse. Hard water has something in it with which the soap combines. Scum forms at once. This scum gets into clothes. You never can rinse it all out.

Soften hard water with Melo and you have water as soft as rain water. Scum doesn't form in soft water. Clothes washed in soft water are as white as snow. Melo saves time and clothes. Get a can of Melo today at your grocer's.

Miss Elizabeth Kerr to Appear in Program Under Musical Club Auspices

AT NEW ELKS HALL

Receives Popular Acclaim Upon American Concert and Opera Stage

Miss Elizabeth Kerr, American lyric soprano, will appear here under the auspices of the Brainerd Musical club in a specially arranged program that will afford her an opportunity to bring out the full qualities of her talented voice. The program will be presented at the new Elks hall Sunday afternoon, January 22, at 3:30 p. m.

Miss Kerr is under the national concert direction of Harry and Arthur Culbertson, Aeolian hall, New York and 4832 Dorchester avenue, Chicago, Ill.

The noted soprano began singing in her school days. She studied with Francesco Daddi, of grand opera fame. Being thoroughly American in all her ideas, this artist has gained all her schooling and her actual experience in Chicago, the city where she was born in 1895, and where she made her debut four seasons ago as soprano with the Chicago Civic Opera, one of the great opera companies of the world.

That European study does much to broaden an artist is Miss Kerr's sincere belief, but that it is necessary to leave America for a number of years in order to achieve a place later in the American music world, she does not believe, and she has proven the worth of her all-American ideas at a remarkably early age.

In this country she has been cast with such artists as Mary Garden, Claudia Muzio, Tito Schipa, Edith Mason, Feodor Chaliapin and Georges Baklanoff, and her unusual combination of voice, art, and personality makes it safe to assume that no other artist of her age has been more generally acclaimed upon the American concert and opera stage.

Jaroslav Gons, violinist, has been secured as the artist for the January 14 meeting of the musical club at the new Elks hall. The recital will start at 3 p. m. Mr. Gons is under the direction of Harry and Arthur Culbertson.

POSTERS DEPICT LEGION PROGRESS

Pictorial Review to be Presented
During Month of February

E. H. RHODES' STATEMENT

Carl Sidney Hanson Post to Carry on Intensive Membership Drive

Posters depicting the progress of the American Legion during the first decade of its life will appear on the bill boards of Brainerd for a whole month beginning February. It was announced by E. H. Rhodes, commander of the Carl Sidney Hanson post of the Legion. Arrangements have been made for the use of the bill board space here during the month in order that the ideals and aims of the Legion may be placed before the people of the city, according to the commander.

The posters will depict in a vivid way the real spirit of the Legion. Commander Rhodes said. They will be symbolical of the Legion ideal of service to the country in peace time as in war, which the Legion is carrying out in its community service, Americanism, political education, child welfare and similar activities.

The poster has been made up from a sketch drawn especially for the Legion by Chester A. Bratten, a well known artist of Chicago. It has a decorative background in which the main figure is the Goddess of Liberty standing with arms uplifted in consecration of the sacrifice made by the fighting men of America in the World war. In the foreground is a panoramic scene depicting the city, agriculture and industry. At the top is the name "The American Legion" and at the bottom the slogan, "In peace, as in war—we serve."

Similar posters will be displayed in almost every city and town in America during February to give national emphasis to the service which the Legion is now rendering to community, state and nation. Commander Rhodes stated. More than 17,000 of the posters are being sent out from the national headquarters of the Legion at Indianapolis to be posted throughout the country. The Carl Sidney Hanson post will begin an intensive membership campaign which will reach its climax during the month the posters are on the boards, Commander Rhodes announced.

COL. LINDBERGH FLIES SAFELY TO PANAMA CITY

COMPLETES AERIAL TOUR TO SEVENTH CAPITAL OF CENTRAL AMERICAN STATES

WARMLY GREETED BY THOUSANDS WAITING AT THE FLYING FIELD

Panama City, R. P., Jan. 9.—(UP)—Col. Charles A. Lindbergh flew here today from Costa Rica, thus completing safely his aerial tour to the capitals of seven Central American states.

The aviator brought the Spirit of St. Louis to land at 1:50 P. M. (eastern standard time) and was greeted by thousands who for hours had been waiting at the flying field.

San Jose, Costa Rica, Jan. 9.—Starting the seventh flight of his tour of Central America, Col. Chas. A. Lindbergh left here for Panama in the Spirit of St. Louis at 8:43 A. M. (9:19 A. M., eastern standard time) today.

Thousands cheered the aviator's departure. Crowds assembled at the aviation field long before Lindbergh came to tune up his plane.

After the take-off Lindbergh circled over the city, before heading eastward.

The flight to Panama was one of the longest the flier has attempted since he left Mexico. The air line distance is 330 miles, but that would necessitate a long passage over the Mosquito Gulf. Lindbergh intended to fly overland, thus the distance would be increased to at least 400 miles.

AMERICAN, TAKEN CAPTIVE BY MEXICAN OUTLAWS, ESCAPES

Mexico City, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Lyman F. Barber, Los Angeles mining man, captured by Mexican outlaws three weeks ago, has escaped and safely reached Mexico City after killing four of his captors.

He arrived here Sunday from the bandits' stronghold in the state of Mexico, coming by way of Cuernavaca.

Saturday evening, he reported on arrival here, he attacked his bandit guards with a steel rod and a broken bottle as his only weapons. He beat four of them to death and then safely made his way from the place where he was held.

He walked over lonely trails all Saturday night to Cuernavaca. From there his route to Mexico City was comparatively easy.

Odorous Snakes

The biological survey says that some snakes have a detectable odor. This is stronger in some species than in others. It is most noticeable in the garter snake.

To Get Plants to Blossom

Old plants, if lifted and potted, will seldom blossom in the house. They will furnish leaves, but probably no flowers. The way to get flowers is to take slips or cuttings from the old plants, and root them in pots. These new plants will blossom very well.

LESSONS FROM THE SUBMARINE DISASTER

THE world is not so much concerned with the findings of the naval inquiry investigating the S-4 submarine disaster, if all that is done is finding who, if any one, is to blame. What the average citizen expects is testimony and findings that will guard against a repetition and will suggest safety devices that will give the crew a chance for their lives.

As matters now stand, the crew of the S-4 had no more safety devices than the crew of the S-51. One would think that the first disaster would impress a few lessons and make submarine life in peace times safer for the S-4.

Edward Ellsberg, Lieutenant Commander of the United States Navy, in an article in the Minneapolis Journal, sums up the accident and states that much can be learned from the disaster and the experience will help to avoid a repetition in the future.

"The navy did its best in this instance. It quickly mobilized its best men, all its available material and vessels, and gave carte blanche to Admiral Brumby to do and order what he pleased. There was no red tape, no delay in granting him what he asked.

"I am no longer of the navy and owe it nothing except a deep sense of obligation for an invaluable training and a chance to serve my country. But I know the men, both officers and divers, whom it sent to this task, and there does not exist in any walk of life in our country another group of men who have had the experience or who have equal ability with these men for the task confronting them. Nor was there available on December 18, 1927, anywhere in the United States material better suited to the job than that which the navy sent to the scene. The navy did its best. Its best was better than anyone else could have done on this job, and the country may rest assured that its naval officers and men are neither bungling amateurs nor swallowed in a sea of red tape.

"But it is ridiculous to say that the navy cannot do better. As in the development of every other branch of industry which has profited by its disasters, the navy has learned through turret explosions to build better battleships, through boiler explosions to design better boilers, and it will learn from submarine disasters to build safer submarines and provide better means for saving their crews and salvaging them when necessary.

"In my mind, this will lead along the lines of providing separate salvage air connections to each compartment, special escape locks for the crew at each end of the boat as well as in the conning tower, the provision of small lifting eyes along each side of the submarine, so that pontoons may be quickly attached under the boat; the provision at central locations in each area of submarine operations of a complete set of pontoons and a salvage ship for handling them; the assignment of sufficient vessels like the Falcon, which shall be free from other duties to train and drill their crews for the rapid handling of pontoons and the prompt execution of rescue diving work and the re-establishment at Newport of the deep sea diving school, so that there may be continuously available a large supply of divers for deep water salvage jobs.

"Such men are rare in the commercial world; those the navy now has are rapidly passing out of the service or are getting beyond the safe age limit.

"The redesign of existing submarines to meet the new safety requirement is difficult, but I do not believe it beyond the abilities of the navy to carry out."

The most important thing Ellsberg has suggested is the small lifting eyes on each side of the submarine as well as in the conning tower. Divers went down to the S-4 hulk, dug holes or tunnels in the oozing mud to fasten lines about the submarine, and several hoists were made but the ropes slipped.

Germany and France are as much concerned in building salvage corps material and evolving safety and recovery methods as they are in building the original submarines.

A SIMPLE EXPEDIENT

A NEW YORK pastor whose pugnacity and other eccentricities have won for him considerable space in the papers received some good advice from a local judge the other day. The pastor, it appears, had received argumentative letters from a prominent member of an atheistic society, some of which he had answered, as he seldom misses an opportunity to participate in a debate. The correspondence did not go to his liking and he brought action against the atheist for sending insulting letters through the mails, or something of the sort. The judge threw the case out of court, with the remark that the offending letters belonged in the waste basket rather than in court. Admitting that some of the expressions in the letters may have been impolite, he said that the statute was not intended as a salve for irritated feelings.

The waste basket is one of the most convenient and useful receptacles known. There are persons who will write insulting letters on the slightest provocation. Often their epistles are anonymous, but whether anonymous or not, if they are thrown into the waste basket without being given other attention the purpose of their writer is defeated. If the recipient of a malicious letter takes notice of it the writer is gratified. He intended to irritate and annoy, and he feels that he has accomplished his purpose. If the waste basket is used the writer does not know what has happened. Perhaps the letter was lost in the mail. Perhaps the recipient, recognizing its character, did not trouble to read it. Perhaps he did read it and thought it unworthy of further notice. There are all sorts of possibilities, but in any case the sender is deprived of the pleasure of seeing his intended victim squirm. —Grand Forks, N. D., Herald.

GOOD BUSINESS

THE Journal Press last week took the county commissioners to task for accepting the bids of The Brainerd Tribune and The Crosby Courier to do the county printing at legal rates, these papers contracting to cause the county printing to appear in all of the papers of the county except the Journal Press.

The Journal Press bid was for about one-half of the amounts bid by the Tribune and the Courier, but its bid provided for the county advertising to appear in only one paper, the Journal Press, with only about 1000 or 1200 circulation, and the Tribune and Courier bids covered seven papers of the county with seven or eight thousand circulation. In other words the Journal Press wanted one-half the pay for about one-eighth of the circulation or publicity service by the other papers.

The commissioners would have been poor representatives of the people and mighty poor business men had they accepted the bid of the Journal Press.

SYNOPSIS

Mickey Grogan, orphaned and alone, finds that living by his wits on the city streets is not always such a pleasant job. His great task is keeping out of the hands of the tramp officer and on one occasion, when all looks hopeless and a trip to "the institution" seems certain, Mickey is rescued by Jeffrey Shore, a young man who is nearly blind. The "soup-lines" have closed so Mickey takes his new friend to the apartment of Winifred Davidson who has been his benefactor. Winifred overrules Jeffrey's objection to the intrusion and provides them with a bed in the attic. While Mickey is out foraging for food they refused to take from her, Jeffrey confides to Winifred that he is an architect forced to desert his profession because of failing eyesight. She, also alone and supporting herself by working for Alexander Cabell, factory owner, is touched by his plight and decides to help.

There was an air of soft luxury about Cabell's private office in the National Food Products Company. A deep rug was on the floor and big, easy chairs were drawn about the hearth. Only in the corner, near the windows was there any indication that this was a place of business and not a living room. Here stood the walnut desk with its highly polished surface, its green blotter with the black leather frame, and the silver-mounted ink-stand and pen-rest. On this afternoon, following the evening that Mickey had gone out hunting for food, Mr. Cabell's desk was strewn with numerous blueprints of building data and plans. The young employer was leaning over these plans, his elbows on the to unite the useful and the purely aesthetic. I believe he is best known for his churches. And judging by his plan, he's forgotten that you can't bring the same methods to factory construction that you bring to church erection.

Mr. Keeley nodded his head. The production manager wanted to agree with his employer, but he couldn't see, for the life of him, why the Boss should be so darned particular. A factory, to Mr. Keeley, was a factory and not an art museum. It was a place where men and women worked at machines for eight hours a day, and he saw no necessity for surrounding these workers with movie set interiors. On the other hand, Mr. Keeley could not restrain a sneaking admiration for his employer. He has built up such an extraordinary business in the short space of five years was nothing short of miraculous. Everything that Cabell touched seemed, at once, to turn to gold. And if he wanted his factories to be beautiful and useful at the same time, he would doubtless succeed in making them so. Failure was not a word in Alexander Cabell's vocabulary.

"There's Mr. John Forster," suggested the production manager. "I believe he has a great reputation as an architect. Perhaps—" "Well, you might call Forster in," advised Cabell. "Though I don't think that you can teach an old dog like Forster new tricks." Cabell let his hand slide through the numerous plans on his desk. "All these plans are good, but they seem, somehow, to lack the spark, the touch of originality we require." The head of the National Food Products Company looked discouraged for a moment. Then he desk; and beside him stood Walter Keeley, his young production manager. Winifred was nearby sorting out various papers that she was waiting to show her employer after Mr. Keeley would depart. Cabell was fond of telling many of his friends that his secretary knew as much about the National Food Products Company as he did himself. "I could eliminate myself and Miss Davidson would be able to carry on," he had said upon more than one occasion.

The Company was now going forward with its policy of expansion and new factories were being planned for cities in distant parts of the country. The Cabell factories were unusual in that they were not only models of mechanical ingenuity but also artistic beauty. Young Cabell believed that factories should not only manufacture, but that they should add architectural beauty to the towns in which they were situated. There was no reason, Cabell believed, why a factory should not be aesthetically satisfying as well as efficient. Nor did he believe in slighting his employees. They worked hard and deserved surroundings of comfort and beauty. To this end, the young man had called in architects of reputation and known skill to draw up plans for these new factories; and many of these blueprints were now before him.

Cabell himself was not ignorant of the intricacies and technical difficulties of architecture, and, whereas most men of affairs are too busy to bother with these details and leave them to be solved by lesser office workers, he never failed to give them his personal supervision. At present, it was apparent that Cabell had found the plans before him unsatisfactory.

"No," he declared, pushing them aside, "these won't do—any of them. I'm astonished at the lack of originality shown. Here are the same old things, copies of a thousand other factories I've seen in my travels up and down the country. What I want is something unique, something that will advertise the name National Food Products and at the same time be useful and beautiful. This plan here, for instance—" and Cabell showed the blue-print to his production manager—"why the rooms are dark and electric light would be necessary all day. And the ventilating system is antiquated."

Mr. Keeley looked apologetic, as though his employer were blaming him for the architect's failure. "You're quite right sir. It does seem that the light is bad. But Eric Winston is supposed to be one of the best architects in the country."

"The trouble with Winston, as I see it," said Cabell, "is his failure to think that you can teach an old dog like Forster new tricks." Cabell let his hand slide through the numerous plans on his desk. "All these plans are good, but they seem, somehow, to lack the spark, the touch of originality we require." The head of the National Food Products Company looked discouraged for a moment. Then he

At that moment, Winifred wanted to jump up and cry, "Mr. Cabell, I know the young genius that you're looking for. He was standing in a soup line the other evening, and Mickey brought him home. He's living up in the attic of my apartment house!" Would Mr. Cabell laugh at her as if she were out of her mind? Or would he receive her suggestion kindly? Would he be willing to gamble with a young man who was going blind? But Mr. Cabell's whole business career was one great gamble, as Winifred saw it. Then, why not? She opened her mouth as if to speak, but at that moment, her employer, grown weary of plans and factories, reached for his hat, and without another word, passed from the office.

Winifred went over to her employer's desk, beside which Mr. Keeley, the production manager, was still standing. As Winifred looked over the plans she could not help telling Mr. Keeley about Jeff. "I know he's a wonderful architect," she said. "I wonder if Mr. Cabell would give him a chance."

"The production manager was inclined to be just the least bit jealous of anyone who suggested something over his head. 'I don't imagine this protege of yours amounts to a great deal,' Mr. Keeley discouraged her. 'I don't see how he'd stand a chance with these great architects with their reputations.'"

"But the point is," answered Winifred not the least abashed by the production manager, "Mr. Cabell wants to get in touch with someone unknown. At least, there's nothing to be lost in trying."

Mr. Keeley laughed condescendingly. "Well, suit yourself," he said, "but I don't think any good will come of it." He looked back at Winifred with a superior smile and then left the office.

"My, how that man loves himself," thought Winifred. She continued to look at the plans on the desk, and they seemed quite ordinary to her, just like all the other factories she had seen. Nothing different, nothing distinctive. Jeff couldn't help doing better. He only has eyes—

She went hastily back to her own desk and started to put away her work for the night. Suddenly, without any warning, the office door opened and Winifred looked up startled. Al Nevers came in. (To be continued)

OKLAHOMA'S POLITICAL WAR FLARING UP

FRESH SERIES OF CHARGES ARE MADE CONCERNING MONEY TRANSACTIONS

ACCUSATIONS MADE BY CARL MAGEE IN OKLAHOMA CITY NEWS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 9. — (UP) — Oklahoma's political war threatened to break out again today as a result of charges that a large money transaction influenced the state senate when it adjourned recently without acting on impeachment charges brought by the house against Governor Henry S. Johnston.

The charges were made by Carl Magee in an editorial in the Oklahoma City News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. Magee attained fame several years ago when he led a bitter political fight in New Mexico, where he then published a newspaper. He was sentenced to jail for contempt of court there because of attacks on a judge.

"More than $100,000 doubtlessly was paid out to bring about the quashing of the charges," Magee wrote. He declared he knew "three of the sources from which the money came."

Ingram's "Garden of Allah" a Spectacular and Thrilling Drama of the Desert

One of the greatest desert romances ever filmed, "The Garden of Allah," a Rex Ingram production of Robert Hichens' famous novel comes to the Lyceum theatre Tuesday.

Filmed in the sand wastes of the Sahara, the locality in which the story takes place, it has authentic reality. It tells the tale of a Trappist monk's love for an English girl, or his marriage to her, and of his subsequent return to the monastery after three months spent with her on the desert.

"The Garden of Allah" is a haunting romance filled with passion, heart-break and thrilling adventure.

TUNNEY MAY BE AT ELIMINATION BOUT FRIDAY NIGHT

New York, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Gene Tunney may postpone a proposed hunting trip to attend the heavyweight elimination bout between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney next Friday night.

The champion has been warned by William Muldoon, New York boxing commissioner, that the winner of the fight is quite likely to be the challenger for the title next summer.

Muldoon invited Tunney to attend the bout as his guest.

Sharkey continued a 2 to 1 favorite in the meeting, despite a faint sense of uncertainty concerning his condition. He has been ordered to come to New York for a physical examination and plans to arrive Tuesday.

"Sharkey will beat this fellow easily," said Jimmy Johnston, the astute little manager who recently acquired a 10 per cent interest in the Lithuanian.

Sharkey has agreed to meet Johnny Risko of Cleveland here in March if he defeats Heeney.

Corporate Personality

In the world of commerce there is such a thing as corporate personality—quite as definite and recognizable as the personality among individuals.

The names of large business organizations call to mind definite impressions just as the names of people characterize the individual.

Wherever the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is spoken in the Middle West it arouses a definite reaction. Nothing abstract or impersonal or vague about that name!

It stands for service, honestly rendered; for a friendly expert to be called on for help or advice when a certain particular problem demands solution. It stands for the kind of friend whose opinion is respected and whose judgment is trusted.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has earned the friendship of the people of the Middle West by years of unfailing, efficient service.

It has produced and distributed to all corners of the ten states petroleum products of unvarying dependability.

It has given employment to a great group of people—creating congenial conditions for work—providing opportunity for them to advance according to their energies and abilities.

It has employed—advantageously to all concerned—the money of thousands of stockholders—many of them persons of small means—giving them the security of investing in a useful and well-run enterprise.

Efficiency characterizes the corporate personality of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Its creed of service is not sentimental idealism. It is a business proposition—a business of acts and facts and figures.

This Company is "hard headed" but not "hard hearted." Size and efficiency are but means to an end—and that end is service. The more efficient the business, the greater the service it is able to render.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) never loses sight of the human basis on which all business is built. Business is an achievement of civilization. Instead of each man doing everything for himself, men band together and say, "We'll do this for you if you'll do that for us."

The vast business of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is simply organized helpfulness. The desire to be helpful is multiplied many thousands of times by the power of men and machinery.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is friendly—human—efficient—helpful. It has a personality unchanging, enduring—representing all that is best in more than 29,000 men and women—a personality held true from one generation to the next by the highest of creeds—service.

The Journal Press bid was for about one-half of the amounts bid by the Tribune and the Courier, but its bid provided for the county advertising to appear in only one paper, the Journal Press, with only about 1000 or 1200 circulation, and the Tribune and Courier bids covered seven papers of the county with seven or eight thousand circulation. In other words the Journal Press wanted one-half the pay for about one-eighth of the circulation or publicity service by the other papers.

The commissioners would have been poor representatives of the people and mighty poor business men had they accepted the bid of the Journal Press.

SYNOPSIS

Mickey Grogan, orphaned and alone, finds that living by his wits on the city streets is not always such a pleasant job. His great task is keeping out of the hands of the truant officer and on one occasion, when all looks hopeless and a trip to "the institution" seems certain, Mickey is rescued by Jeffrey Shore, a young man who is nearly blind. The "soup-lines" have closed so Mickey takes his new friend to the apartment of Winifred Davidson who has been his benefactor. Winifred overrules Jeffrey's objection to the intrusion and provides them with a bed in the attic. While Mickey is out foraging for food they refused to take from her, Jeffrey confides to Winifred that he is an architect forced to desert his profession because of failing eyesight. She, also alone and supporting herself by working for Alexander Cabel, factory owner, is touched by his plight and decides to help.

There was an air of soft luxury about Cabel's private office in the National Food Products Company. A deep rug was on the floor and big, easy chairs were drawn about the hearth. Only in the corner, near the windows was there any indication that this was a place of business and not a living room. Here stood the walnut desk with its highly polished surface, its green blotter with the black leather frame, and the silver-mounted inkstand and pen-rest. On this afternoon, following the evening that Mickey had gone out hunting for food, Mr. Cabel's desk was strewn with numerous blueprints of building data and plans. The young employer was leaning over these plans, his elbows on the to unite the useful and the purely aesthetic. I believe he is best known for his churches. And on the city streets he's forgotten that you can't bring the same methods to factory construction that you bring to church erection."

Mr. Keeley nodded his head. The production manager wanted to agree with his employer, but he couldn't see, for the life of him, why the Boss should be so darned particular. A factory, to Mr. Keeley, was a factory and not an art museum. It was a place where men and women worked at machines for eight hours a day, and he saw no necessity for surrounding these workers with movie set interiors. On the other hand, Mr. Keeley could not restrain a sneaking admiration for his employer. To have built up such an extraordinary business in the short space of five years was nothing short of miraculous. Everything that Cabel touched seemed, at once, to turn to gold. And if he wanted his factories to be beautiful and useful at the same time, he would doubtless succeed in making them so. Failure was not a word in Alexander Cabel's vocabulary.

"There's Mr. John Forster," suggested the production manager. "I believe he has a great reputation as an architect. Perhaps—" "Well, you might call Forster in," advised Cabel. "Though I don't think that you can teach an old dog like Forster new tricks." Cabel let his hand slide through the numerous plans on his desk. "All these plans are good, but they seem, somehow, to lack the spark, the touch of originality we require." The head of the National Food Products Company looked discouraged for a moment. Then he desk, and beside him stood Walter Keeley, his young production manager.

Winifred was nearby sorting out various papers that she was waiting to show her employer after Mr. Keeley would depart. Cabel was fond of telling many of his friends that his secretary knew as much about the National Food Products Company as he did himself. "I could eliminate myself and Miss Davidson would be able to carry on," he had said upon more than one occasion.

The Company was now going forward with its policy of expansion and new factories were being planned for cities in distant parts of the country. The Cabel factories were unusual in that they were not only models of mechanical ingenuity but also artistic beauty. Young Cabel believed that factories should not only manufacture, but that they should add architectural beauty to the towns in which they were situated. There was no reason, Cabel believed, why a factory should not be aesthetically satisfying as well as efficient. Nor did he believe in slighting his employees. They worked hard and deserved surroundings of comfort and beauty. To this end, the young man had called in architects of reputation and known skill to draw up plans for these new factories; and many of these blueprints were now before him.

Cabel, himself, was not ignorant of the intricacies and technical difficulties of architecture, and, whereas most men of affairs are too busy to bother with these details and leave them to be solved by lesser office workers, he never failed to give them his personal supervision. At present, it was apparent that Cabel had found the plans before him unsatisfactory.

"No," he declared, pushing them aside, "these won't do—any of them. I'm astonished at the lack of originality shown. Here are the same old things, copies of a thousand other factories I've seen in my travels up and down the country. What I want is something unique, something that will advertise the name National Food Products and at the same time be useful and beautiful. This plan here, for instance—" and Cabel showed the blue-print to his production manager—"why the rooms are dark and electric light would be necessary all day. And the ventilating system is antiquated."

Mr. Keeley looked apologetic, as though his employer were blaming him for the architect's failure. "You're quite right, sir. It does seem that the light is bad. But Eric Winston is supposed to be one of the best architects in the country."

"The trouble with Winston, as I see it," said Cabel, "is his failure said, "There must be somewhere in this country a young architect with original ideas who would fit in nicely with what we want. The point is, how are we going to get in touch with this unknown paragon?"

At that moment, Winifred wanted to jump up and cry, "Mr. Cabel, I know the young genius that you're looking for. He was standing in a soup line the other evening. He's living up in the attic of my apartment house!" Would Mr. Cabel laugh at her as if she were out of her mind? Or would he receive her suggestion kindly? Would he be willing to gamble with a young man who was going blind? But Mr. Cabel's whole business career was one great gamble, as Winifred saw it. Then, why not? She opened her mouth as if to speak, but at that moment, her employer, grown weary of plans and factories, reached for his hat, and without another word, passed from the office.

Winifred went over to her employer's desk, beside which Mr. Keeley, the production manager, was still standing. As Winifred looked over the plans she could not help telling Mr. Keeley about Jeff. "I know he's a wonderful architect," she said. "I wonder if Mr. Cabel would give him a chance."

The production manager was inclined to be just the least bit jealous of anyone who suggested something over his head. "I don't imagine this protégé of yours amounts to a great deal," Mr. Keeley discouraged her. "I don't see how he'd stand a chance with these great architects with their reputations."

"But the point is," answered Winifred, not the least abashed by the production manager. "Mr. Cabel wants to get in touch with someone unknown. At least, there's nothing to be lost in trying."

Mr. Keeley laughed condescendingly. "Well, suit yourself," he said, "but I don't think any good will come of it." He looked back at Winifred with a superior smile and then left the office.

"My, how that man loves himself," thought Winifred. She continued to look at the plans on the desk, and they seemed quite ordinary to her, just like all the other factories she had seen. Nothing different, nothing distinctive. Jeff couldn't help doing better. It only his eyes—

She went hastily back to her own desk and started to put away her work for the night. Suddenly, without any warning, the office door opened and Winifred looked up startled. Al Nevers came in. (To be continued)

OKLAHOMA'S
POLITICAL WAR
FLARING UPFRESH SERIES OF CHARGES ARE MADE CONCERNING MONEY
TRANSACTIONSACCUSATIONS MADE BY CARL
MAGEE IN OKLAHOMA CITY NEWS

Oklahoma City, Okla., Jan. 9. (UP)—Oklahoma's political war threatened to break out again today as a result of charges that a large money transaction influenced the state senate when it adjourned recently without acting on impeachment charges brought by the house against Governor Henry S. Johnston.

The charges were made by Carl Magee in an editorial in the Oklahoma City News, a Scripps-Howard newspaper. Magee attained fame several years ago when he led a bitter political fight in New Mexico, where he then published a newspaper. He was sentenced to jail for contempt of court there because of attacks on a judge.

"More than $100,000 doubtlessly was paid out to bring about the quashing of the charges," Magee wrote. He declared he knew "three of the sources from which the money came."

Ingram's "Garden of Allah" a Spectacular and Thrilling Drama of the Desert

One of the greatest desert romances ever filmed, "The Garden of Allah," a Rex Ingram production of Robert Hichens' famous novel comes to the Lyceum theatre Tuesday.

Filmed in the sand wastes of the Sahara, the locality in which the story takes place, it has authentic reality. It tells the tale of a Trappist monk's love for an English girl, of his marriage to her, and of his subsequent return to the monastery after three months spent with her on the desert.

"The Garden of Allah" is a haunting romance filled with passion, heart-break and thrilling adventure.

TUNNEY MAY BE AT ELIMINATION
BOUT FRIDAY NIGHT

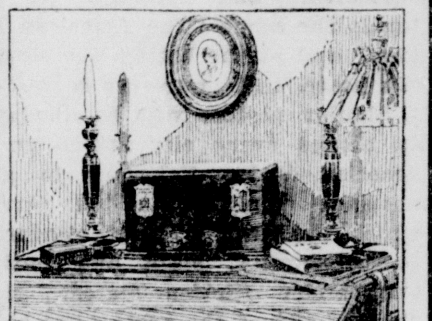

New York, Jan. 9.—(UP)—Gene Tunney may postpone a proposed hunting trip to attend the heavyweight elimination bout between Jack Sharkey and Tom Heeney next Friday night.

The champion has been warned by William Muldoon, New York boxing commissioner, that the winner of the fight is quite likely to be the challenger for the title next summer.

Muldoon invited Tunney to attend the bout as his guest. Sharkey continued a 2 to 1 favorite in the meeting, despite a faint sense of uncertainty concerning his condition. He has been ordered to come to New York for a physical examination and plans to arrive Tuesday.

"Sharkey will beat this fellow easily," said Jimmy Johnston, the astute little manager who recently acquired a 10 per cent interest in the Lithuanian.

Sharkey has agreed to meet Johnny Risko of Cleveland here in March if he defeats Heeney.

Corporate
Personality

In the world of commerce there is such a thing as corporate personality—quite as definite and recognizable as the personality among individuals.

The names of large business organizations call to mind definite impressions just as the names of people characterize the individual.

Wherever the name of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is spoken in the Middle West it arouses a definite reaction. Nothing abstract or impersonal or vague about that name!

It stands for service, honestly rendered; for a friendly expert to be called on for help or advice when a certain particular problem demands solution. It stands for the kind of friend whose opinion is respected and whose judgment is trusted.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) has earned the friendship of the people of the Middle West by years of unfailing, efficient service.

It has produced and distributed to all corners of the ten states petroleum products of unvarying dependability.

It has given employment to a great group of people—creating congenial conditions for work—providing opportunity for them to advance according to their energies and abilities.

It has employed—advantageously to all concerned—the money of thousands of stockholders—many of them persons of small means—giving them the security of investing in a useful and well-run enterprise.

Efficiency characterizes the corporate personality of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana). Its creed of service is not sentimental idealism. It is a business proposition—a business of acts and facts and figures.

This Company is "hard headed" but not "hard hearted." Size and efficiency are but means to an end—and that end is service. The more efficient the business, the greater the service it is able to render.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) never loses sight of the human basis on which all business is built. Business is an achievement of civilization. Instead of each man doing everything for himself, men band together and say, "We'll do this for you if you'll do that for us."

The vast business of the Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is simply organized helpfulness. The desire to be helpful is multiplied many thousands of times by the power of men and machinery.

The Standard Oil Company (Indiana) is friendly—humane—efficient—helpful. It has a personality unchanging, enduring—representing all that is best in more than 29,000 men and women—a personality held true from one generation to the next by the highest of creeds—service.

The Christmas cantata, "Out of the East" was sung at the Methodist church Sunday evening by the Pine River Lutheran and the Brainerd Methodist choirs jointly, to an audience that taxed the entire seating capacity of the church.

"Out of the East" was written by Herman Von Berge with the music by Ira B. Wilson. It began with an introduction in a beautiful contralto solo outlining the story which followed. The people were looking for deliverance, feeling that the time was at hand. This was told in a number by a quartet of mixed voices with choir accompaniment.

In a very impressive choir selection with soprano obligato, the glory of the heavens with the appearance of the star on that first Christmas night, were told. Shepherds were led by the star towards the manger of Bethlehem in a men's two part chorus with the full choir joining in the refrain. Wise Men of the East inquired about the new-born King and were directed to Bethlehem. This part of the story was sung in three numbers: a trio of men's voices, a two part woman's chorus, and a tenor solo with chorus by the choir.

In a bass solo the Wise Men were shown journeying to the place where the King was to be found. This solo continued in the following number as the Wise Men reached the manger. The gifts were presented and the King was worshipped in a song of praise by the choir. The finale was a tremendous counterpoint chorus, "The Bethlehem Song" in which were featured soprano and contralto solos, a woman's chorus and the full choir.

The instrumental accompaniment throughout was very effective with Mrs. F. E. Marsh of Pine River, pianist, Maurice Linden, of Pine River, violinist and Mrs. M. L. Eversz, organist.

The success of the program was due largely to the enthusiasm and ability of the director, Rev. Anderson, who has had much experience in directing large choirs. He trained the Pine River choir and they gave the cantata at home recently. The local choir had been directed by Mrs. A. W. Moulster and were prepared to render the program a week ago, when it was suggested that it be postponed for a week in order that the two choirs might give it together. The visiting singers came early in the afternoon in order to have a joint rehearsal. After the rehearsal supper was served to the two choirs in the church basement.

The singers follow: Brainerd, sopranos, Mrs. Ben Anderson, Mrs. Ray Hall, Mrs. C. W. Hemsworth, Mrs. A. W. Moulster.

FORMER SOLON DIED YESTERDAY

S. F. Alderman Claimed by Death
After Lengthy Illness
at 66

RESIDENT 40 YEARS

Held Offices of Clerk of District
Court, County Attorney,
Municipal Judge

The death of S. F. Alderman at the age of 66 years yesterday at 5 p. m. following a lingering illness at the home of his son-in-law, County Attorney Walter F. Wieland, 421 North 4th street, marks the passing of one of Brainerd's most outstanding citizens, a man whose life was devoted to the important public offices that he held in this city and county and during his term as state senator.

S. F. Alderman

Previous to his retirement from the bench of the municipal court about 16 months ago, Judge Alderman was possibly the most active of Brainerd citizens in civic offices. He was appointed clerk of the district court on February 1, 1886 to succeed A. W. Frater by Judge O. P. Stearns of Duluth. He served as clerk of the court until November 15, 1894 when he resigned. After his office as clerk of the district court he studied law in Brainerd and was admitted to the bar in 1896.

He was elected state senator in 1904 and took office in 1905, serving four years. He was elected by popular vote for county attorney, holding that office for 12 years. He later held the office of judge of the municipal court and was a partner in law with W. H. Mantor, and later with Mal Clark. He was appointed to fill the office of municipal judge two years ago at the time of the death of Judge Ezra R. Smith, and after a year in office retired taking an extended trip to his old home in Connecticut.

Mr. Alderman was born in East Granby, Connecticut, on July 1, 1861. He was educated in the local schools there and received his higher learning at Hartford university. He came to Brainerd 40 years ago.

His beautiful baritone voice made him the most popular soloist in Brainerd during his younger days here, singing in the Aeolian and Elks quartet. He held a life membership of The Elks lodge and was an active member of the Knights of Pythias and Masonic orders.

Judge Alderman is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Wieland, one son, James H. Alderman, Brainerd and two sisters, Mrs. Edna Clark, of Windsor Locks, Conn., and Mrs. Nell Fie Douglas, of Windsor, Conn.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of James H. Alderman, 305 Juniper street, Rev. N. P. Olmsted, pastor of the Congregational church officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery. Pall bearers have been selected from a number of his closest friends. They are: W. A. M. Johnstone, Con O'Brien, E. O. Webb, R. J. Hartley, Mal Clark and Ed. Hall.

The family request that no flowers be sent.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

IN THE Spring of 1925 Dodge Brothers undertook an important and gigantic task—which is now complete.

Since its inception in 1914 Dodge Brothers had specialized exclusively in a four-cylinder product. During thirteen years more than two million units of that product were sold to America and to the world.

It is unnecessary here to comment on the singular merits of that famous Four.

It was honored on the battlefields of war, and achieved equal distinction on the highways and byways of peace.

Its long life and complete dependability had become an adage.

Meanwhile, however, times were changing and tastes were changing with them.

While still as important as ever, dependability alone was no longer sufficient.

Greater speed and comfort, more style and luxury were the growing prepossessions of the hour.

Six-cylinder motors were gradually becoming practical at popular prices.

Progressive engineering dictated the revision and refinement of existing four-cylinder power plants.

Two years ago Dodge Brothers appraised its task and embarked upon a program designed to place it and its Dealer Organization in a position on January 1, 1928, second to none in the industry.

Quietly, with deliberation and dispatch, and without interrupting the regular course of production and service to customers, the new program went swiftly forward.

The astonishing results of this great achievement are now known to the world.

It is doubtful if industrial annals can cite, over a similar period, an achievement so outstanding.

A smart, swift, low-priced and immensely popular quality Four has replaced its famous predecessor.

The Senior Six, outstanding in performance, quality and luxurious appointment, has been created.

Graham Brothers Trucks and Motor Coaches (formerly exclusively Fours) have been supplemented by Sixes. Fifty new types have been added. The capacities are broadened to range from one-half ton to two-ton, all resulting in the most complete and capable line of work cars known, and with prices ranging from $670 to $4290.

Then Thursday came The Victory—a Six for $1045 and up—the most spectacular engineering achievement of the decade.

These accomplishments, one following the other in steady progression, have now provided Dodge Brothers Dealers throughout the world with the most diversified and comprehensive line of passenger and commercial vehicles ever manufactured and sold by a single organization.

For every need and purse there is now a Dodge Brothers vehicle built dependably and in full recognition of the progressive ideals of today and tomorrow.

Adhering rigidly to the sound and honorable standards of a great past, Dodge Brothers have met the challenge of a still more exacting future.

The gifts were presented and the King was worshipped in a song of praise by the choir. The finale was a tremendous counterpoint chorus, "The Bethlehem Song" in which were featured soprano and contralto solos, a woman's chorus and the full choir.

The instrumental accompaniment throughout was very effective with Mrs. F. E. Marsh of Pine River, pianist, Maurice Linden, of Pine River, violinist and Mrs. M. L. Eversz, organist.

The success of the program was due largely to the enthusiasm and ability of the director, Rev. Anderson, who has had much experience in directing large choirs. He trained the Pine River choir and they gave the cantata at home recently. The local choir had been directed by Mrs. A. W. Moulster and were prepared to render the program a week ago, when it was suggested that it be postponed for a week in order that the two choirs might give it together. The visiting singers came early in the afternoon in order to have a joint rehearsal. After the rehearsal supper was served to the two choirs in the church basement.

The singers follow: Brainerd, sopranos, Mrs. Ben Anderson, Mrs. Ray Hall, Mrs. C. W. Hemsworth, Mrs. A. W. Moulster.

Altos—Mrs. A. G. Kurz, Mrs. R. Fitzsimmons, Mrs. Ethel Fox, Miss Augusta Welsh.

Tenors—F. E. Lind, Wm. Anderson, Henry Cunningham, Lawrence Erickson, Harold Dunn.

Basses—Melvin Bredenberg, L. B. Putz, Geo. Sehn.

Director of the Brainerd Methodist choir, Mrs. A. W. Moulster. Organist, Mrs. Morris Eversz.

FORMER SOLON DIED YESTERDAY

S. F. Alderman Claimed by Death
After Lengthy Illness
at 66

RESIDENT 40 YEARS

Held Offices of Clerk of District
Court, County Attorney,
Municipal Judge

The death of S. F. Alderman at the age of 66 years yesterday at 5 p. m. following a lingering illness at the home of his son-in-law, County Attorney Walter F. Wieland, 421 North 4th street, marks the passing of one of Brainerd's most outstanding citizens, a man whose life was devoted to the important public offices that he held in this city and county and during his term as state senator.

S. F. Alderman

Previous to his retirement from the bench of the municipal court about 16 months ago, Judge Alderman was possibly the most active of Brainerd citizens in civic offices. He was appointed clerk of the district court on February 1, 1886 to succeed A. W. Frater by Judge O. P. Stearns of Duluth. He served as clerk of the court until November 15, 1894 when he resigned. After his office as clerk of the district court he studied law in Brainerd and was admitted to the bar in 1896.

He was elected state senator in 1904 and took office in 1905, serving four years. He was elected by popular vote for county attorney, holding that office for 12 years. He later held the office of judge of the municipal court and was a partner in law with W. H. Mantor, and later with Mal Clark. He was appointed to fill the office of municipal judge two years ago at the time of the death of Judge Ezra R. Smith, and after a year in office retired taking an extended trip to his old home in Connecticut.

Mr. Alderman was born in East Granby, Connecticut, on July 1, 1861. He was educated in the local schools there and received his higher learning at Hartford university. He came to Brainerd 40 years ago.

His beautiful baritone voice made him the most popular soloist in Brainerd during his younger days here, singing in the Aeolian and Elks quartet. He held a life membership of The Elks lodge and was an active member of the Knights of Pythias and Masonic orders.

Judge Alderman is survived by a daughter, Mrs. Walter F. Wieland, one son, James H. Alderman, Brainerd and two sisters, Mrs. Edna Clark, of Windsor Locks, Conn., and Mrs. Nell Fie Douglas, of Windsor, Conn.

The funeral will take place tomorrow afternoon at 2:30 o'clock from the home of James H. Alderman, 305 Juniper street, Rev. N. P. Olmsted, pastor of the Congregational church officiating. Interment will be in Evergreen cemetery. Pall bearers have been selected from a number of his closest friends. They are: W. A. M. Johnstone, Con O'Brien, E. O. Webb, R. J. Hartley, Mal Clark and Ed. Hall.

The family request that no flowers be sent.

A BRIEF HISTORY OF A GREAT ACHIEVEMENT

IN THE Spring of 1925 Dodge Brothers undertook an important and gigantic task—which is now complete.

Since its inception in 1914 Dodge Brothers had specialized exclusively in a four-cylinder product. During thirteen years more than two million units of that product were sold to America and to the world.

It is unnecessary here to comment on the singular merits of that famous Four.

It was honored on the battlefields of war, and achieved equal distinction on the highways and byways of peace.

Its long life and complete dependability had become an adage.

Meanwhile, however, times were changing and tastes were changing with them.

While still as important as ever, dependability alone was no longer sufficient.

Greater speed and comfort, more style and luxury were the growing prepossessions of the hour.

Six-cylinder motors were gradually becoming practical at popular prices.

Progressive engineering dictated the revision and refinement of existing four-cylinder power plants.

Two years ago Dodge Brothers appraised its task and embarked upon a program designed to place it and its Dealer Organization in a position on January 1, 1928, second to none in the industry.

Quietly, with deliberation and dispatch, and without interrupting the regular course of production and service to customers, the new program went swiftly forward.

The astonishing results of this great achievement are now known to the world.

It is doubtful if industrial annals can cite, over a similar period, an achievement so outstanding.

A smart, swift, low-priced and immensely popular quality Four has replaced its famous predecessor.

The Senior Six, outstanding in performance, quality and luxurious appointment, has been created.

Graham Brothers Trucks and Motor Coaches (formerly exclusively Fours) have been supplemented by Sixes. Fifty new types have been added. The capacities are broadened to range from one-half ton to two-ton, all resulting in the most complete and capable line of work cars known, and with prices ranging from $670 to $4290.

Then Thursday came The Victory—a Six for $1045 and up—the most spectacular engineering achievement of the decade.

These accomplishments, one following the other in steady progression, have now provided Dodge Brothers Dealers throughout the world with the most diversified and comprehensive line of passenger and commercial vehicles ever manufactured and sold by a single organization.

For every need and purse there is now a Dodge Brothers vehicle built dependably and in full recognition of the progressive ideals of today and tomorrow.

Adhering rigidly to the sound and honorable standards of a great past, Dodge Brothers have met the challenge of a still more exacting future.

ST. CLOUD PAPERS PRAISE BRAINERD TEAM

LOCAL HIGH PLAYED RINGS AROUND TECH

WORST TRIMMING FOR ST. CLOUD TEAM SINCE YEAR 1917

BRAINERD HIGH GAVE TECH A 29 TO 8 DEFEAT FRIDAY

Both St. Cloud papers accorded Brainerd high school basketball team high praise, the game of Friday night when the locals defeated St. Cloud Tech, 29 to 8, being reviewed at length by the St. Cloud Daily Times and the St. Cloud Journal-Press, and featured on the sports pages.

We quote in part from the St. Cloud Times' story written by Harold L. Schoelkopf:

Brainerd's much talked-about basketball team lived up to its advance press notices Friday night at the armory and played rings around Tech High school, to win by a 29 to 8 score. It was the first time Brainerd has played Tech in basketball since 1923, and the first time the Crow Wing county lads have taken St. Cloud's measure since 1920. Incidentally, it was the worst trimming a St. Cloud basketball team has taken since 1917 when St. John's University scored a 33 to 7 triumph.

For Brainerd, the outstanding floor man was the diminutive Wise, a threat alike on offense and defense. He was a constant worry to Tech guards, and a hard man to cover. Captain Guin of Brainerd at center did some effective work, as did Welliver at floor guard. LaCourse, a sub at forward, looked good in the final quarter.

Brainerd has a fast team that breaks rapidly on offense and seems to cover its ground pretty thoroughly on defense. Its passing game is better than the average high school team's. It has played five games to date, winning three and losing twice to Bemidji, 20 to 19, and the other time by three points.

St. Cloud Journal-Press Story
Quoting in part the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press:

Outclassed, outplayed and outfought at every turn, the Technical high school basketball team lost to Brainerd Friday evening, 29 to 8, in a game in which the contest was about ended at the start of the second quarter. The Techs, coming out of the first quarter with a 4 to 4 tie, did succeed in counting three points in the second, holding Brainerd to a slight lead of two points, but were entirely out of the game for nearly three-quarters of the play, and Brainerd gave one of the finest high school basketball exhibitions of record.

ARMY AND NAVY WON'T PLAY EACH OTHER

If the visitors always play as they did Friday evening the team ought to be one to figure with in its region for the honors to go to the state tournament. If the failure of the opposition caused the contrast to seem so extraordinarily great, then St. Cloud is woefully weak.

Wise was the real threat of the game. After the start of the second quarter the Techs did succeed in bothering his chances at the basket, but they could not stop his floor work. And he aided others at the basket when he could not get there. There was team work in Brainerd's basket throwing as well as in the floor work. When Wise had done his share of the counting, Guin, center, and Welliver, guard, took turns. When the count had gone to 23 the turn to do the throwing came to LaCourse, and he threw three in succession.

The Brainerd team is clever in its co-operation, and the men are clever as individuals. They are quick on the break, follow the ball like an eagle, and get it away just as fast. That seemed to be the chief worry of the Techs. They were determined to hang onto the ball and when they finally decided to throw, everything and everybody was so well covered, a poor throw was the only course.

LEGION DEFEATS WRIGHT 19 TO 8 IN FAST BATTLE

MARSHALL AND WHITLOCK DIVIDE HONORS IN HIGH SCORING

LOCALS TO MEET MOOSE LAKE FIVE HERE JANUARY 18TH

The American Legion basketball team continued its winning streak Saturday night by taking into camp the Wright five on the latter's floor by the count of 19 to 8 in a game featured by close guarding of the local team.

The Wright boys took the lead in the first period but the locals came back strong in the second quarter to grab the lead by the score of 7 to 4.

The second half found the Brainerd team working better, the third period ending, 11 to 8. Whitlock and Marshall put the game on ice by sinking two field goals apiece in the last three minutes of play.

Marshall and Whitlock scored four field goals apiece for scoring honors with Lequier high man for Wright with three field goals. B. Heikkinen was taken from the game with an injured leg in the second period and will be laid up for a few days. Marshall and Avery worked well on the forward line with Whitlock working in his customary fine manner at the pivot position.

The locals will meet the fast Moose Lake five on January 18 at the high school gym here. The visitors were runners-up in the state tournament last year. This will be the last home game before the Legion team starts out on their road trip from January 24 to January 28.

HARD PRESSED FOR SUBSTITUTES IN SUCH GAMES

"WANTED, FIRST CLASS GRIDIRON OPPONENT FOR LATE NOVEMBER"

"ONE CAPABLE OF BECOMING PERMANENT RIVAL PREFERRED"

By FRANK GETTY

New York, Jan. 9.—"Wanted: a first class gridiron opponent for late November. One capable of becoming a permanent rival preferred."

West Point and Annapolis, having chosen not to compete against each other on the gridiron in 1928, today were in desperate competition for suitable substitutes.

In Army and Navy circles, it is felt the academy which succeeds in obtaining the strongest and most colorful substitute for its traditional rival will be adjudged victor in the dispute over eligibility.

Military academy authorities are particularly concerned about a suitable opponent for a late November football game. They want to arrange a date with some outstanding institution, so that they can say:

"See, Princeton plays us and does not complain about our athletes."

If the Navy, on the other hand, can show that some college has turned down a bid for a big November game with the Army and accepted one with the Midshipmen, it will be a feather in the Navy's cap.

The Army is on the schedule of both Yale and Harvard, where eligibility rules are strictest, but would like to emphasize its acceptability in intercollegiate football competition by adding another such institution to its list.

All signs point to a bid from West Point for a game with Princeton.

This would complete the cycle of "Big Three" engagements for the Cadets in 1928.

The Middies also would like to play Princeton. The Tigers loom as one of the strongest of the year's eleven. Bill Roper will have ten regulars and a wealth of second string material on hand next fall. Captain Howe heads a team which would make an ideal opponent for either service eleven.

From Princeton's point of view, an engagement with either the Army or Navy might be most acceptable.

With the exception of Yale, there isn't a worthy opponent on the Tigers' 1928 schedule. Ohio State, Washington and Lee and Cornell are going to be easy for that powerful Princeton team.

Moreover, the Princeton season ends a week earlier than that of Yale, because the Elis insist upon playing the final game of the year with Harvard. Needing a first class opponent to test the strength of Captain Howe's eleven, and having an open date, the Tigers might accept a bid from West Point or Annapolis.

Dartmouth is another college which might be acceptable to either of the service academies, although "Big Green" teams of late have lacked the prestige of other years. Like Princeton, Dartmouth ends its schedule on the Saturday before the Yale-Harvard game, and for the same reason.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

A resumption of Tex Rickard's favorite indoor game, known as the heavyweight elimination tournament, is scheduled for Friday night. This time it will be Jack Sharkey of Boston and Tom Heeney of New Zealand.

When one of this pair has been eliminated, the other will be just about all there is left in the line of logical heavyweight contenders.

It is not too much to anticipate that the winner will be Gene Tunney's next opponent.

At this time last year, the woods were full of heavyweight contenders. There was Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport boxer, whom many believed to be the best bet to beat Tunney. There was roly-poly Jimmy Maloney, the Boston fishmonger, rated on a par with Sharkey. Mike McTigue of Dublin was among those present, and the semi-finals of the elimination tournament created a tremendous furore.

One of New York's best ticket scandals ensued previous to the Maloney-Delaney fight, in which extraordinary interest was aroused. The fight turned out to be a fizzle, Maloney winning from the opening bell, Delaney putting up a miserable exhibition.

The excuse was made for Delaney that his arm was in bad shape. So were those who backed him at 8 to 5 and 2 to 1.

The McTigue-Sharkey fight was a corker while it lasted, old Mike being out in front at the end of ten rounds, only to succumb to fatigue and suffer a technical knockout in the twelfth round. Bleeding badly from a cut mouth, McTigue protested feebly as referee Patsy Haley stepped in to save the gallant old Celt from further unnecessary punishment.

Since Sharkey had made a rather indifferent showing against McTigue and Maloney had defeated Delaney, the outdoor bout between the two Bostonians drew a tremendous throng to Yankee Stadium.

From the start, it was apparent the Maloney had been greatly overrated. Sharkey punched him full of holes and knocked him cold in the fifth round.

All this excitement built Sharkey up as an ideal opponent for Jack Dempsey, and the dramatic, still disputed fight which re-established the former heavyweight champion, followed. In the seventh round, after nearly knocking out Dempsey in the first heat, Sharkey took two low rights to the body, followed by a left hook to the jaw, and went down claiming he had been felled.

Dempsey's admirers, and the park seemed filled with them, screamed "Yellow!" The Sharkey crowd claimed that their man had been deliberately fouled. Another faction insisted the Bostonian had "taken a dive."

All of which made excellent ballyhoo for the Dempsey-Tunney fight. This year, Rickard and Tunney lament the absence of the ballyhoo. They have only Sharkey, Heeney, Dempsey and perhaps Delaney to shuffle around, and of this quartet Dempsey and Delaney are uncertain quantities.

There is a lot of uncertainty about Sharkey, too, but Friday night's fight should dispel it.

It has played five games to date, winning three and losing twice to Bemidji, 20 to 19, and the other time by three points.

St. Cloud Journal-Press Story

Quoting in part the St. Cloud Daily Journal-Press:

Outclassed, outplayed and out-fought at every turn, the Technical high school basketball team lost to Brainerd Friday evening, 29 to 8, in a game in which the contest was about ended at the start of the second quarter. The Techs, coming out of the first quarter with a 4 to 4 tie, did succeed in counting three points in the second, holding Brainerd ard to a slight lead of two points, but were entirely out of the game for nearly three-quarters of the play, and Brainerd gave one of the finest high school basketball exhibitions of record.

If the visitors always play as they did Friday evening the team ought to be one to figure with in its region for the honors to go to the state tournament. If the failure of the opposition caused the contrast to seem so extraordinarily great, then St. Cloud is woefully weak.

Wise was the real threat of the game. After the start of the second quarter the Techs did succeed in bothering his chances at the basket, but they could not stop his floor work. And he aided others at the basket when he could not get there. There was team work in Brainerd's basket throwing as well as in the floor work. When Wise had done his share of the counting, Guin, center, and Welliver, guard, took turns. When the count had gone to 23 the turn to do the throwing came to LaCourse, and he threw three in succession.

The Brainerd team is clever in its co-operation, and the men are clever as individuals. They are quick on the break, follow the ball like an eagle, and get it away just as fast. That seemed to be the chief worry of the Techs. They were determined to hang onto the ball and when they finally decided to throw, everything and everybody was so well covered, a poor throw was the only course.

LEGION DEFEATS WRIGHT 19 TO 8 IN FAST BATTLE

MARSHALL AND WHITLOCK DIVIDE HONORS IN HIGH SCORING

LOCALS TO MEET MOOSE LAKE FIVE HERE JANUARY 18TH

The American Legion basketball team continued its winning streak Saturday night by taking into camp the Wright five on the latter's floor by the count of 19 to 8 in a game featured by close guarding of the local team.

The Wright boys took the lead in the first period but the locals came back strong in the second quarter to grab the lead by the score of 7 to 4.

The second half found the Brainerd team working better, the third period ending, 11 to 8. Whitlock and Marshall put the game on ice by sinking two field goals apiece in the last three minutes of play.

Marshall and Whitlock scored four field goals apiece for scoring honors with Lequier high man for Wright with three field goals. B. Heikkinen was taken from the game with an injured leg in the second period and will be laid up for a few days. Marshall and Avery worked well on the forward line with Whitlock working in his customary fine manner at the pivot position.

The locals will meet the fast Moose Lake five on January 18 at the high school gym here. The visitors were runners-up in the state tournament last year. This will be the last home game before the Legion team starts out on their road trip from January 24 to January 28.

The Romans had a liquid which, when used on the inner walls of a new house, dried them at once, but that secret was lost more than seven centuries ago.

HARD PRESSED FOR SUBSTITUTES IN SUCH GAMES

"WANTED, FIRST CLASS GRIDIRON OPPONENT FOR LATE NOVEMBER"

"ONE CAPABLE OF BECOMING PERMANENT RIVAL PREFERRED"

By FRANK GETTY

New York, Jan. 9.—"Wanted: a first class gridiron opponent for late November. One capable of becoming a permanent rival preferred."

West Point and Annapolis, having chosen not to compete against each other on the gridiron in 1928, today were in desperate competition for suitable substitutes.

In Army and Navy circles, it is felt the academy which succeeds in obtaining the strongest and most colorful substitute for its traditional rival will be adjudged victor in the dispute over eligibility.

Military academy authorities are particularly concerned about a suitable opponent for a late November football game. They want to arrange a date with some outstanding institution, so that they can say:

"See, Princeton plays us and does not complain about our athletes."

If the Navy, on the other hand, can show that some college has turned down a bid for a big November game with the Army and accepted one with the Midshipmen, it will be a feather in the Navy's cap.

The Army is on the schedule of both Yale and Harvard, where eligibility rules are strictest, but would like to emphasize its acceptability in intercollegiate football competition by adding another such institution to its list.

All signs point to a bid from West Point for a game with Princeton.

This would complete the cycle of "Big Three" engagements for the Cadets in 1928.

The Middies also would like to play Princeton. The Tigers loom as one of the strongest of the year's elevens. Bill Roper will have ten regulars and a wealth of second string material on hand next fall. Captain Howe heads a team which would make an ideal opponent for either service eleven.

From Princeton's point of view, an engagement with either the Army or Navy might be most acceptable.

With the exception of Yale, there isn't a worthy opponent on the Tigers' 1928 schedule. Ohio State, Washington and Lee and Cornell are going to be easy for that powerful Princeton team.

Moreover, the Princeton season ends a week earlier than that of Yale, because the Elis insist upon playing the final game of the year with Harvard. Needing a first class opponent to test the strength of Captain Howe's eleven, and having an open date, the Tigers might accept a bid from West Point or Annapolis.

Dartmouth is another college which might be acceptable to either of the service academies, although "Big Green" teams of late have lacked the prestige of other years. Like Princeton, Dartmouth ends its schedule on the Saturday before the Yale-Harvard game, and for the same reason.

SPORTSMATTER

BY FRANK GETTY
UNITED PRESS SPORTS EDITOR

A resumption of Tex Rickard's favorite indoor game, known as the heavy-weight elimination tournament, is scheduled for Friday night. This time it will be Jack Sharkey of Boston and Tom Heeney of New Zealand.

When one of this pair has been eliminated, the other will be just about all there is left in the line of logical heavyweight contenders.

It is not too much to anticipate that the winner will be Gene Tunney's next opponent.

At this time last year, the woods were full of heavyweight contenders. There was Jack Delaney, the Bridgeport boxer, whom many believed to be the best bet to beat Tunney. There was roly-poly Jimmy Maloney, the Boston fishmonger, rated on a par with Sharkey. Mike McTigue of Dublin was among those present, and the semi-finals of the elimination tournament created a tremendous furore.

One of New York's best ticket scandals ensued previous to the Maloney-Delaney fight, in which extraordinary interest was aroused. The fight turned out to be a fizzle, Maloney winning from the opening bell, Delaney putting up a miserable exhibition.

The excuse was made for Delaney that his arm was in bad shape. So were those who backed him at 8 to 5 and 2 to 1.

The McTigue-Sharkey fight was a corker while it lasted, old Mike being out in front at the end of ten rounds, only to succumb to fatigue and suffer a technical knockout in the twelfth round. Bleeding badly from a cut mouth, McTigue protested feebly as referee Patsy Haley stepped in to save the gallant old Celt from further unnecessary punishment.

Since Sharkey had made a rather indifferent showing against McTigue and Maloney had defeated Delaney, the outdoor bout between the two Bostonians drew a tremendous throng to Yankee Stadium.

From the start, it was apparent that Maloney had been greatly overrated. Sharkey punched him full of holes and knocked him cold in the fifth round.

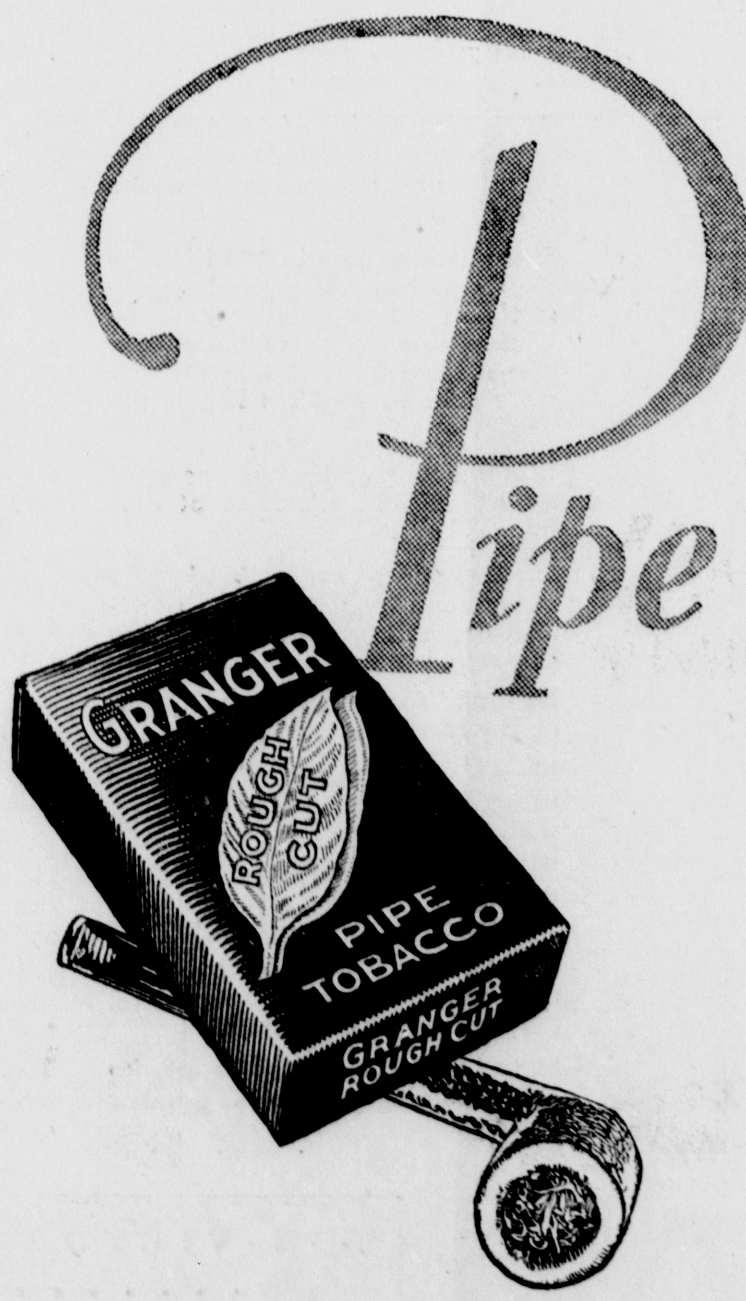

All this excitement built Sharkey up as an ideal opponent for Jack Dempsey, and the dramatic, still disputed fight which re-established the former heavyweight champion, followed. In the seventh round, after nearly knocking out Dempsey in the first heat, Sharkey took two low rights to the body, followed by a left hook to the jaw, and went down claiming he had been fouled.

Dempsey's admirers, and the park seemed filled with them, screamed "Yellow!" The Sharkey crowd claimed that their man had been deliberately fouled. Another faction insisted the Bostonian had "taken a dive."

All of which made excellent ballyhoo for the Dempsey-Tunney fight.

This year, Rickard and Tunney lament the absence of the ballyhoo. They have only Sharkey, Heeney, Dempsey and perhaps Delaney to shuffle around, and of this quartet Dempsey and Delaney are uncertain quantities.

There is a lot of uncertainty about Sharkey, too, but Friday night's fight should dispel it.
